

Great Gift Ideas

Barbara and I have shopped the best wholesalers in NYC and have come back with what we think are the "finds" of the season. We have already sold out of a couple of things and have had to replenish. We have three styles of texting gloves (some fingerless and some with special technology that only some of the fingers work on phones - I can't figure it out!). We have faux fur scarves in two sizes to keep your neck warm (and fashionable) this winter, and wool scarves and pashminas in all shapes, sizes and colors for that hard-to-please person on your gift list. And don't forget to ask your special

Dates to Remember

Sundays, December 11 and 18 - Holiday Open House - We will be open from 1:00 - 5:00 and will have great food, surprises, specials and even gift wrapping. Bring a friend and if she shops you'll get a $5 store credit towards your purchase - share the fun!!

Monday, January 2 will begin our winter clearance sale. Many items will be 50% off and new items will be added daily, so come in early and often.

Social Networking

We have hired a new employee (Lia Staada) to help us to keep up with all the social networking we need to be doing - She will be updating Facebook as well as our website with new photos of items arriving at the store. She will be producing YouTube videos as of January and we are looking for some of you who would love to have some fun and work with us. Hey, we can all go out to eat after and really make it special.

Recipe Ideas

I love meatballs - and have been fascinated to find out how many kinds there are. I just heard of a whole restaurant called The Meatball Store in NYC - can you believe it??? And Rachel Ray's December magazine has loads of recipes for meatballs. The great thing is that they can be cooked and frozen ahead of time and brought out and heated at the last minute and served with all kinds of sauces. I will have a couple of recipes in the store available for you. Why not bring in some of yours and we can share. You can even bring some sample to our open house in December. Come in and bring your best ideas
